THAD. STEVENS AND MASON.—A Washington correspondent of the New York Herald, referring to some of the earlier incidents of Thad. Stevens' political career, gives the following account of his conflict with the Masons when a member of the Pennsylvania Legislature:

At the time when the great anti-Masonic excitement—born to life from the Morgan bugbear—swept over the land, like a fierce simoon, from Maine to Georgia, Thad. Stevens was a member of the Legislature of Pennsylvania. Expressing the cause of the anti-Masons from disappointment, and actuated by feelings of the bitterest animosity against the Masons for reasons that will be made apparent, he introduced a resolution to the effect that the House, of which he was a member, inquire into the subject of Masonry, with power to send for persons and papers. The House, largely anti-Masonic—the members having been elected upon the then tremendous issue of the day—adopted almost unanimously the resolution, and a number of well known Masons were summoned to attend the "high court" then in session at Harrisburg, to give evidence in matters appertaining to the Masonic order.

A thorough investigation was to be had in the premises and the secrets of the brotherhood laid bare to the world. The "devil," the "goat" and the "gridiron" were to be shown up in all their hideousness; the fearful and horrible rites and ceremonies were to be brought forth and exposed to the light of day, and the black monster, Masonry, was to receive its death blow then and there. Thad. Stevens was the St. George who was to annihilate the dragon. On the day appointed for the commencement of the proceedings, which were to consummate the above, every member—and, as we have said, a majority of the House were anti-Masons—was in his seat, anxious for, yet dreading, the uplifting of the curtain that was to reveal the hitherto veiled horrors that darkened the ceremonies of the Masonic brotherhood. The House was packed with Masons and anti-Masons, and among the former was a well known Mason, master of a lodge in the State, who had been summoned to Harrisburg in relation to the matter then about to be investigated in all its details, and him Thad., as a grand inquisitor, proposed to examine first.

When all was in readiness this great champion of the anti-Masons commenced his interrogations thus: "Are you a Mason?" "I am, sir." "Do you belong to a lodge in this State?" "I do, sir." "What position do you hold in the lodge?" "The position of Master." "What are the initial proceedings consequent upon the meeting of a lodge?" "The lodge is opened with prayer." "Well, go on, and state what follows?" "I am waiting for your questions." "Well, what are the ceremonies incident to the admission of a member?" "He is balloted for, and if no votes be cast against him is admitted a member of the order." "What then? Please state the subsequent proceedings. What follow next?" "Mr. Stevens" said the witness, with a mischievous twinkle in his eye, "if, on the 18th, you had been found worthy, you would have become a member of the lodge in—, and would have been initiated in all the secrets and mysteries connected with the order, and would have possessed a knowledge that, except he becomes a member, no man ever will possess." The witness sat down. Stevens was thrown completely back upon the effects of the blow, stupefied with astonishment, he ignominiously wilted. The fact was, he had some years previously been proposed for membership in one of the lodges of the State of Pennsylvania, but was "black ballled," which "little circumstance" he supposed forgotten. The reminder, hurled at him at this particular juncture, knocked him completely off his pins.

A DELECTABLE TOWN.—A correspondent writing from Hayes City, Kansas, the present western terminus of the Kansas branch of the Pacific Railroad, gives the following catalogue of the attractions of that city:

"Hayes City contains about 800 people, nearly one half of whom subsist by selling whiskey to the other half; the Sabbath is known only as a day of recreation, shops of every kind being open, money stacked on the tables, and gaming going on as usual. The gospel has never been preached in the place. The streets are patrolled night and day by soldiers; shooting at each other is the standard amusement of the lively population; four persons having been shot in a single week, recently at night and last appeal. It has not rained in Hayes City for six months."

A CERTAIN CURE FOR GAPES AND OTHER DISEASES IN CHICKENS AND TURKEYS.
A Certain Preventive of Chicken Cholera.
Will prevent disease in all kinds of fowl, and promote an increase of fat. Read the following:
Jefferson, Frederick co., Md.,
July 22d, 1867.
Messrs. Clotworthy & Co.: Gents—The wonderful cures which have been made by your "Poulterer's Friend" cannot fail to interest all who raise poultry. A gentleman from this village has been experimenting on chickens with the gapes. He tried your "Poulterer's" Friend, according to the directions, and it had the desired effect in removing the worm, and eventually relieving the chicken at once. Since then I have had many calls for it, and it has been used extensively with the same result. It is of incalculable value to all who raise poultry.
Respectfully,
A. SPENCER.
